God has given us money and homes not just so that we are thankful, but by our generosity and hospitality to make many people thankful to God. Our love for God and his love in us is confirmed. 1 John 3:17, "If anyone has the world's goods and sees his brother in need, yet closes his heart against him, how does God's love abide in him?" In other words, when we give generously and open our homes, the love of God is confirmed in our lives.

Xenia is the ancient Greek sacred rule of hospitality, the generosity and courtesy shown to those who are far from home or associates of the person bestowing guest-friendship. The rituals of hospitality created and expressed a reciprocal relationship between guest and host expressed in both material benefits as well as non-material ones. The Greek god Zeus is sometimes called Zeus Xenios in his role as a protector of xenia. He thus embodied the religious obligation to be hospitable to travelers.
